Canadian Winner – #3 Seed at World Final

Karl Caslib, who plays under the gamertag Mg x Nuclear, is a 22-year-old from Vancouver, B.C. He admits to having never played ice hockey, but describes his style as more offensive than defensive-minded, compiling an online HUT record of 530-36-6. Caslib amassed a record of 6-2 in the Canadian Regional Final.

A casino table games dealer in Vancouver, Nuclear is familiar with facing high-pressure situations with large outcome stakes. Whether he is winning or losing, he acknowledges that his ability to stay relaxed and calm during matches is a credit to his casino profession. Some say he may be the most comfortable in Las Vegas for the World Final, and his casino background may give him a slight advantage. Nuclear plans to study criminology next year and hopes to take his parents and brother to the World Final to cheer him on.

Throughout the GWC Regional, Caslib played his matches with his hometown Vancouver Canucks, but also plays with the San Jose Sharks on occasion. He lists Patrik Laine of the Winnipeg Jets as the one player he would love to play EA SPORTS™ NHL®19 against. A fan of the New Jersey Devils, he lists his favorite player as Devils forward Taylor Hall and his childhood hockey idol as Devils legend Martin Brodeur. Caslib's most memorable hockey moment came in Game 6 of the 2012 NHL Eastern Conference Final, when Adam Henrique's goal at 1:03 of overtime eliminated the New York Rangers and sent the Devils to the Stanley Cup® Final against the Los Angeles Kings.
