NHL STATEMENT REGARDING THE PHILADELPHIA FLYERS

NEW YORK (Feb. 7, 2021) – The National Hockey League today released the following statement regarding the Philadelphia Flyers:

As a result of a Philadelphia Flyers Player entering the League's COVID Protocol earlier today, a decision was made by the NHL's and NHLPA's medical experts to have all Flyers Players, Coaches and staff receive POC tests in advance of this afternoon's game vs. the Washington Capitals. After all tests returned negative, the League's, NHLPA's and Clubs' medical groups determined that it was appropriate to play the game.
