Following significant renovations to make the arena one of the centerpieces on the former Exposition grounds, the venue was renamed the Seattle Center Coliseum in 1964.

* The first-ever hockey game played at the Coliseum took place on Sept. 30, 1964 and was an exhibition contest between the Western Hockey League's Seattle Totems and Maple Leafs, who had won the Stanley Cup in each of the past three seasons. Frank Mahovlich scored two goals while George Armstrong, Andy Bathgate, Ron Ellis, Billy Harris and Ron Stewart had one apiece as Toronto skated to a 7-1 win against the hosts, which received its lone marker from Gerry Leonard with Gerry Brisson and Bill Dineen drawing assists.
